After using an Osprey Sojourn to both rush through airports on business trips and backpack to the base camp of Mount Everest, the editors of Spot Cool Stuff named it the best backpack-wheeled bag hybrid. So who are we to disagree?

What makes the Osprey Sojourn is vondrous is the internal frame. Most other hybrid bags on the market are typical airline carry-on "wheelies" with a set of backpack straps sewn on. By contrast, the Sojourn (and it's sister, the Meridian) began its design life as a real, durable hiking frame; the rest of the bag was then built around that.

The Sojourn also features a quick access top pocket, internal mesh, and a slide-down luggage tag display. Available in several colors in two sizes: 25-inch ($250) and 28-inch ($280).
