Denver Life Magazine's 2013 GEAR GUIDE

adventure | gear guide

Whether you're fly fishing mountain waters, skiing the most inaccessible peaks or hitting the fairways and greens, DLM's 2013 Gear Guide will help you get the most out of every endeavor. Pack the right bag, grab the best jacket and get out there...And don't forget the kids!

he threatened to go days without changing. The boot features a supple waterproof nubuck leather upper and pigskin lining, but the soul of these boots is on a job site with its Vibram sole. $185. At Patagonia (1431 15th St., Denver) patagonia.com

Stylish Puff

18. The lighter, more fashionable sibling of yesteryears' bulky down jacket is Prana's Powder Parka Jacket. Warm and water-resistant, the Powder Parka features a retro quilting design. And with just the right amount of 870s style to get noticed, this down jacket still looks slimming thanks to the right amount of fill. $170. At Title Nine (160 Steele St., Denver) prana.com

Bag It

Bag It

19. A recent trip through Italy via train left me longing for a rolling bag that can realistically double as a pack. Osprey's Meridian convertible packs are just what my back was begging for: A stable, lightweight roller with an ergonomic retractable handle that won't slow you down, with zip-away padded shoulder straps and a hip belt that can be adjusted to different torso lengths. $330-$360. At Bent Gate Mountaineering (1313 Washington Ave., Golden) ospreypacks.com
