BIGGER HEADQUARTERS, NEW DISTRIBUTION CENTER ON TAP FOR OSPREY

ON FEBRUARY 11 2015.

Cortez, Colo. — Osprey is expanding its headquarters in Cortez, Colo., along with getting ready to officially open its new distribution center in Ogden, Utah. Fourteen new positions will be added to the Cortez location this year, including increases to sales, marketing, quality assurance and the IT department. Founders Mike Pfothenhauer and Diane Wren recently relocated from California to Colorado to be closer to the brand headquarters.

The brand announced the new distribution center in June, and it chose Ogden because of its proximity to national rail networks, which would reduce shipping times. It will open mid-April and will employ 23 people. Cortez will remain the long-term headquarters for the brand, and the expansion there will allow Osprey to move its various departments out of a patchwork of buildings into one facility.
