Osprey Packs, a leader in creating top-quality, high-performance, innovative packs to comfortably and efficiently carry gear is proud to announce that Mike Pfothenhauer, the brand's founder and designer, was named 2015 Celebrity of the Year at last week's Outdoor trade in Friedrichshafen, Germany. Pfothenhauer is the tenth recipient of this annual award, known as the Outdoor Oscar®. The coveted award celebrates an individual, who has made a special contribution to the outdoor industry.

"Mike is one of the most highly talented pack designers," said award presenter Frank Wacker of Outdoor magazine. "Thanks to his vision, Osprey has gone from being a small high-end outfit to one of the most influential backpack brands in the world – a very impressive achievement."

During the award presentation, Wacker celebrated Pfothenhauer's career marked by industry-leading innovations. In 1976, Osprey was the first company to introduce breathable mesh panels for greater comfort. In 2005, Osprey developed the first hipbelt that could be heated and molded directly to the shape of the hip. Most recently, at the 2014 Outdoor show, Osprey presented yet another innovation, which retailers hailed as the most important invention of the year: an AntiGravity™ 3D suspended mesh back system with fully ventilated hipbelt that provides a whole new level of comfort.

"I am truly humbled by this tremendous honor," said Pfothenhauer. "Designing packs and inspiring people to get outdoors is quite simply what I love to do. I feel very fortunate to have built a career on my passion and I am so proud of the company that Osprey Packs has become."

Pfothenhauer was chosen by an international panel of leading outdoor journalists and industry representatives including: David Durkan (Bergans of Norway, Norway), Richard Jägerund (Haglöfs, Sweden), Susan Viscon (Recreational Equipment Inc., USA), David Laffan (Bivouac Outdoor, New Zealand), Wilfried Teller (Larca Sportartikel GmbH, Germany), Petra Thaller (Thaller Media, Germany), Natasha Bloemhard (Salt Magazine, Netherlands), Augusto Rabajoli (Ferrino, Italy) and Peter Schöffel (Schöffel, Germany).
