

BikeRadar.com

September 14, 2010

Review

Featuring: The Talon 22

Monthly Traffic: 199,300

URL: <http://tinyurl.com/25eelt9>

The Talon's well designed harness system gives a truly comfortable feel out on the trail. The deep hip belt sits snugly in position and it's easy to fix the weight to your shoulders with the looped adjusters.

The Ripstop fabric used for most of the body means that you're not carrying extra weight before you pack up, and once you do fill your pack, the profile is still sleek.

The overall effect is that the pack feels like it's wrapped round your core, so that it not only seems like you're carrying less, but the load remains supple and moves with you.

The well thought out pockets include zipped numbers on each side that you can access without removing the pack, and a stretchy helmet/wet weather compartment.

This is the pack we'd choose for epic days, and it's also available in a 20L size to fit narrower or shorter backs. It has a hydration slot, but no bladder.

