

BostonHerald.com

November 15, 2010

It's Got Commuter's Back

Featuring: The Comet

Monthly Traffic: 2,700,000

URL: <http://tinyurl.com/24oq7sk>

For many commuters, the search for a rugged carryall that can withstand the rigors of the daily trek can be challenging – those durable backpacks sometimes look out-of-place in the workplace.

Osprey is one of a few companies that have found the right blend of style and function when it comes to backpacks that live well in both the work and the outdoors atmospheres. Their 24/7 series of packs handles laptops, lunches, books, folders, water bottles, digital music devices and the other arsenal the commute demands.

This 1,700 cubic inch pack is solid, yet at just under 2 pounds, it doesn't bring unnecessary weight. It includes a number of sought-after features, including ear bud routing and an mp3 pocket, a side pocket perfect for a water bottle, internal organization, a key clip, a grab handle at the top and a 15.4-inch laptop sleeve with a padded base.

Even when loaded down with a Dell laptop and a couple of books, the Comet is a comfortable wear. The mesh back panel allows for a cooling airflow on the back.

The Comet ($89.99) comes in four color choices, including black, blue and dark green.

Gift: Osprey Comet backpack

Manufacturer: Osprey

Gender: Both

Age: All Ages

Price: Under $100

