We've been trolling the floor at this year's Outdoor Retailer trade show, checking out next winter's gear. So far, the story has been about the sidecountry, and ski, boots, packs, and jackets that are designed to be used in the backcountry just as well as the resort. We also saw beefy but lightweight bindings, multiple airbag packs, a bunch of waterproof, breathable fabrics. Here's what you'll be coveting next fall.

Osprey's Karve series of packs (in 6,11,and 16 L sizes) are designed to sit close to your back, so you can wear them on the lift. And they have nested pocket for all of your avy gear, so your shovel blade won't crush your snacks.
