

VailDaily.com

June 5, 2012

Taking a Look Around Gear Town in Vail Village

Featuring: Zealot 10

Monthly Traffic: 76,300

URL: <http://tinyurl.com/7rqb3nd>

Taking a look around Gear Town in Vail Village

Businesses show off products at Teva Mountain Games with hopes of having the best new gear

Who has the coolest new gear at Gear Town?

That's a big question every year when vendors come display their latest wares at the Teva Mountain Games' annual expo in Vail Village.

Over in the Osprey tent, the new Zealot series all-mountain cycling packs are their newest items for 2012.

The Zealot 10 includes padded front pockets, harness pockets, backpanel access, an easily removable water reservoir, a removable tool pouch and more.

According to Justin Novak, the bike customer and dealer service representative, the removable reservoir and the tool pouch are what makes this item unique. The pouch is designed to hold tools in case of any unexpected emergencies.

“Our company has been around since 1974 and we have a great lifetime warranty on all of our packs,” Novak said. “Our designer is very key and is hands-on with everything that we do and our warranty is what really sets us apart.”

