Osprey Mira. The daypack offers the hiking hydration features I need and the storage capacity for a full day outdoors. The 18-liter volume is plenty for me, but it comes in a variety of sizes and two rich, back-to-nature colors. $139; ospreypacks.com —Mira Perrizo

Staff Picks gear

Apple Juice pack plus. My iPhone battery noticeably dies when I leave it in my purse, so I opted for the rechargeable juice pack as a powerful battery backup. Chosen from the robust lineup of protective cases available for the iPhone 4/4S and Apple Touch, mine offers the most convincing between-charged appearance with rugged Durabak 2.0 1500 white-angle reinforced polycarbonate. www.apple.com —Lisa Matus

Smartest Women's Corset Jacket. The soft and silky Corset Jacket has a moisture-wicking, color controlling SmartMesh material lining and a lightweight mesh for maximum breathability during the day. The jacket's zip-up design blocks the sun and its stretchy side panels simply allow for moving in my pants and across my chest. The jacket kept me cool while covering up temperatures just above freezing this winter, and it served as a staple in my running wardrobe through spring and the fall. www.foxconn.com —Linda Dwyer

Moisture Comfort Serendipity Tank. It's getting warm where I live and the girls' compartments at the gym for her workouts aren't that hot. I happened to see when I was the Serendipity Tank in white. I love how breathable it is and when I wear the Serendipity Tank in white, I love how breathable it is and when I wear the Serendipity Tank in white, I love how breathable it is. www.merrell.com —Linda Dwyer
