Gear review: The Osprey Radial 26

Osprey gets this passion loud and clear and consistently dedicate a great deal of energy and effort to ensure us bike commuters have the most comfortable and functional medium in which to carry our change of clothes, grooming essentials, MP3 player, phone, laptop (sometimes), keys, lunch and bike lock.

The latest result is the Osprey Radial 26 ($159) and here's what I love about it:

This is an impressive pack. For the bike commuter, it has almost everything you need and everything you need is conveniently and thoughtfully located.

I have been using a first-generation Momentum for three years, commuting to work mostly every day by bike and year round so I'm confident in Osprey's materials, design and durability. Osprey even backs up their product with the All Mighty Guarantee. They will repair any pack, for any reason, free of charge, any damage or defect—whether you purchased the pack last week or 1974. If Osprey is unable to repair the item, it will replace it.

The Radial comes in two sizes (26 and 34) and in two colors: black and very-visible-to-even-blind-drivers neon green.
