

Get Wicked Gnar With This Season's Best Snowboarding Gear

Wired.com

December 23, 2014

Get Wicked Gnar with this Season's Best Snowboarding Gear

Featuring: Kode ABS Compatible 22 + 10

Monthly Traffic: 18,329,000

URL: <http://tinyurl.com/n8zkt22>

Every season brings a new wave of snowboarding gear chock full of innovation and bold designs. This year is no exception: Boards are coming in a variety of shapes—whether it's Gnu's asymmetrical carver or Gilson's double-edged design—and packs are sporting new avalanche features to keep you safe in the backcountry. There are even new twists in apparel—pants with removable liners, jackets made of upcycled Gore-Tex clippings, and, yes, a pair of skinny snowboarding pants because why the hell not.

We looked around the industry and picked some of the most promising pieces of snowboarding gear for the upcoming season. Take a look and beef up that Christmas wish list.

Osprey ABS Kode 22 +10

Osprey's backcountry pack is a great piece for splitboard touring—large enough for backpacking, with all the tweaks and tools for snowboarding. Thoughtful features like wet/dry gear organization, ABS compatibility, and the ability to expand to a 32-liter pack make it a great way to haul your essentials with you on a day trip. $200  OSPREY

