Season's Best: Outdoor Retailer Market

Twice a year, the universe of outdoor gear descends upon the Salt Palace Convention Center in downtown Salt Lake City, Utah, to display the latest and greatest in adventure products at the Outdoor Retailer market.

Over the years the outdoor industry has branched out from gear for the core adventure set to products that combine high-tech R&D and stylish sensibility. Products, in other words, that merge function and fashion into one cohesive, go-anywhere, do-anything item that's as ideal for traversing a big city as it is the backcountry.

Of the thousands of products on display this past January, here are ten picks that should suit the savvy traveler. Some are on the market now, while others will drop in fall 2015.

Osprey Ozone Convertible Suitcase: The venerable pack company will reinvent its entire line of travel-centric packs this fall, but the Ozone Convertible may hit the perfect sweet spot for most intrepid travelers. At 50 liters (for the small pack) it is big enough to haul your goods via its easy-rolling frame, but also boasts hidden backpack straps to help you navigate the rougher terrain.
