Redesigned for 2015, the Zealot meets the evolving needs of enduro mountain bike racers. A three-liter reservoir provides "slosh-free" hydration and an improved hydration compartment features an additional sleeve for Dad to store essential items inside. A new harness and hipbelt provide improved stability while updated geometry can easily carry a full face helmet and armor—the new Zealot features a foam stiffened front panel and upper compression straps that will quickly secure a full face helmet. A mesh pocket on the side of the hydration pack and side compression straps are ideal spots to store Dad's elbow and shin protection. More »
