Must-Have Camping Gear For Your Summer Adventure

It's been argued the discovery of fire is mankind's most important moment, but with burn bans occupying campgrounds across much of our drought-plagued nation, an open flame might not do you any good this year. Instead, you'll need to rely on more modern innovations to keep you warm, dry, fed, and entertained. These 10 camping gadgets will not only help take the sting out of your smore-less nights, but they're all compact enough to keep your load light as can be.

Osprey Atmos AG: This backpack's boast of having "anti-gravity suspension" is most likely marketing-speak, but the trekkers who swear their 35-pound loads feel more like 20 pounds won't hear of it. The real story is a lightweight mesh that hugs the body close from the hip to the shoulders, making the fit more like an extension of the body. While there's not any other tech at play here, that's enough to put this backpack, which runs around $250 depending on where you buy it, on our list.
