You can't run home and change when you are on the road. So what you pack or, rather, what you don't pack is really important. The following selections are great for when you fly, drive, bus, train, boat, or otherwise transport yourself away from your abode.

Play the carry-on game with an ace in the whole by knowing your bag is airline approved. Even if you stuff the Osprey Porter 46, using all of its compartments to its fullest to port all your running kit and what my mother calls "normal clothes," of which I have very little, according to her. The Porter is padded enough to shield both you and your belongings. There are handy compartments to help keep everything organized, plus there's a pack attachment for you to add to your load. The harness and hip belt are stowable. converting the Porter into more of a duffel than a pack.
