

Fodor's Approved: 2015's Best Carry-On Bags

Fodors.com

December 15, 2015

Fodor's Approved: 2015's Best Carry-On Bags

Featuring: Ozone 22"/46L

Monthly Traffic: 2,956,600

URL: <http://tinyurl.com/jfhzqnf>

When you're traveling, knowing where your luggage is at all times—and never having to wait at the baggage carousel—can make your journeys a lot less stressful. But not all carry-on bags are created equal, so we put dozens of them to the test this year and picked our favorites. With a wide variety of size, style, color, and price, these winners include options for every type of traveler. Here are 17 carry-on bags we think make great travel companions for all of your future trips. —Fodor's Editors

OSPREY OZONE 22-INCH

The Tester: Michael Alan Connelly, Editor, Fodors.com

The Review: Osprey's redesigned Ozone line looks so much better than it used to, but it still has the same great features. The main sell here is the lightweight aspect—this one only weighs 4.37 lbs. That fact alone made it a joy to test out on a bus trip to Maryland over a long summer weekend. There's plenty of space inside the bag to fit a week's worth of clothing; the internal and external compression straps make it easy to pack a lot. The nylon shell and aluminum frame are extremely durable, which is amazing considering how little the bag weighs. I especially appreciated the spacious front and rear pockets, as well as the retractable handle and top and side handles.

The Catch: The sporty look of this bag isn't for everyone.

The Verdict: A solid option for many travelers, this lightweight luggage would be ideal for overpackers.

The Price: $230, buy it here.

JAM COLLECTIVE